

Commissary Guide

Once a week, the Santa Cruz Main Jail Commissary program gives inmates the opportunity to purchase from a pre-approved list (included in JAIL 101) of items including grooming and personal hygiene supplies, food, beverages, writing and correspondence supplies, and some clothing items and shoes.

Commissary is an incredibly important part of life in jail. Without “money on the books” for commissary, or commissary privileges altogether, the only food available to inmates is during fixed mealtimes. In jail, inmates are given a half-hour to consume and dispose of their breakfast, lunch, and dinners. By contrast, items purchased through commissary can be accessed and consumed at any time -day or night.

The little things really matter in jail, and items purchased through commissary can do wonders to help inmates break up rather dreary days and partake in periodic treats – giving them things to look forward to. Many of the things - paper, pens, soap, shampoo, toothbrushes, toothpaste, and envelopes – that people on the “outside” take for granted are not readily available in the jail. Coffee, tea, and other hot beverages are only available through the jail’s commissary program.

Inmates are expected to maintain personal hygiene by utilizing items purchased through commissary. Things like shampoo, deodorant, and soap give men and women a sense of dignity and cleanliness – for a price. Inmates with less than $3 in their inmate accounts are provided a basic care package that contains 2 shampoo packets, a pencil, a toothbrush, toothpaste, 6 sheets of paper, two stamped envelopes, and a comb each week.

Upon booking, inmates are given an “Inmate Trust Account” - initially funded with money found on their person at the time of arrest. This account can be used for weekly commissary purchases, phone time, or tablet computer time, and replenished by their friends and family members. Deposits can be made by friends and family using the kiosk in the lobby of the Main Jail (8AM-5PM), going online (<http://www.inmatedeposits.com/>), by phone (1-866-345-1884) or by making a money order or cashier’s check made payable to the SANTA CRUZ COUNTY JAIL. To deposit correctly, the sender must write an inmate’s name and S# on the money order or cashier’s check. Personal checks are not accepted and will be returned to sender. Deposits to an Inmate Trust Account (and account balance itself) must not exceed $300.

There are two main ways that inmates can obtain commissary – “Remote Fulfillment” and “Local Fulfillment” – each with slightly different products and prices.

Inmates with commissary privileges and on “Open Status” can order commissary in jail through “Local Fulfillment.” Using a tablet computer (one is available for free on each unit in the jail) inmates can complete their weekly commissary orders digitally. For many years, all commissary orders were completed on red-colored bubble sheets. Less tech savvy inmates can still use the bubble sheets today (on request) but the jail is trying to go paper-less when possible.

We’ve included a commissary “Menu” in Jail 101 so you can see exactly what products/items are available to inmates, and how much each item costs. Each commissary item has a unique number/code that inmates enter in on a jail tablet (or bubble sheets). It's worth noting that Items are added or removed periodically- so this may not be the most current menu available.

"Bubble sheet" and digital commissary orders are collected throughout the week and processed at 10 AM on Tuesday mornings. This is when funds are deducted from an inmate's Trust Account to pay for their purchases. If there is not enough money "on their books" for an inmate to pay for every item on their order sheet, the first items (goods at the top) will be processed. Once an individual's money runs out, the rest of the items will not be ordered.

There is a strict cap of $125 worth of items each week. If an inmate orders more than $125, the extra amount will be ignored.

The other way to order commissary is "Remote Fulfillment." This is the way for you to order commissary – or create a care package - for your friend or loved one yourselves. To order commissary for inmates over the phone, you can call 1-800-546-6283. To order commissary for inmates on the internet, you can visit www.santacruzpackages.com. An account must be created, and the inmate's name and S number must be provided.

Items listed on the website can be added to a "cart" and then paid for using a Visa, Discover, or Mastercard. A $6.95 processing fee is added to each order. Like local fulfillment, there is a strict limit of $125 a week for all orders placed this way. Conceivably, if an inmate maxes out their commissary using local fulfillment inside the jail., they could potentially receive $250 worth of commissary in a given week by also using "remote fulfillment."

You may find that some things are "out of stock" for a variety of reasons, and that some items are only available by remote fulfillment -- and cannot be ordered by those in jail. Completed orders are processed and shipped to the Main Jail and distributed with locally fulfilled commissary Wednesday nights. Once you pay for the items, your order will be processed and shipped to the jail, and distributed on Wednesday, along with locally fulfilled items.

Remote fulfillment is a real treat for inmates. They feel like they are receiving gifts from their friends and loved ones on the outside – it's a great way to maintain connections through difficult circumstances.

The jail's rhythm and energy seem to revolve around commissary. Most commissary nights have party-like atmospheres - inmates happily binging on sugar and caffeine. The opposite is true too. The night before commissary is delivered, things are scarce. Some inmates cut hard deals, like promising to give someone two packets of ramen noodles the next day if someone "loans" them one packet immediately. There is an official policy against trading commissary items but it is rarely enforced.

Having large amounts of commissary gives people power in jail, but it can also make them a target. In the Main Jail, no inmate has a secure place to store items -- so things often go "missing." Commissary is delivered in conspicuous transparent plastic bags at the entrance to each housing unit. Everyone on the unit sees what, and how much commissary other inmates are receiving.
